VOL. XXXVIII. NO. 14. BRISTOL, BUCKS COUNTY, PA., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1910.

TENER WINS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Republican Nominee Elected by Reduced Plurality.

GRIM HOPELESSLY LOST

Berry Leaders May Contest the Election, Claiming He Was Counted Out in Philadelphia and Pittsburg.

Philadelphia, Nov. 10.—The plurality of John K. Tener over William H Berry for governor of Pennsylvania increases slightly as the complete vote by counties comes in. A reasonable estimate, based on the official count placed Tener's plurality at 25,500, although returns from remote districts may change this slightly one way or another.

The counties of Elk and Snyder which were missing, made but a small difference in the outcome, since the former gave a small plurality for Grim and the latter added to Berry's tally by 54 votes.

Allegheny county, which has been the surprise of this election, is now piling up a plurality for Tener as the late districts report. His plurality of 5060 on Tuesday night has now been increased to 7900, with some forty of the 666 precincts to be heard from.

Philadelphia gave Tener a plurality of 45,106.

In the counties carried by ex-Senator Webster Grim, the Tener and Berry vote ran substantially even in that the differences of some counties were balanced in others. There appears to be no reason to fear that Tener's final plurality will fall below 25,000, while there is some ground to believe that it may reach 30,000 when all is told.

Berry May Contest.

The Keystone party leaders claim that Tener was not elected at all and that they will have but little trouble in proving fraud at the polls in both Pittsburg and Philadelphia. The assertion is made by the Keystone people that Berry was elected by at least 70,000 plurality but that the organization machines counted him out in favor of Tener.

In Pittsburg preparations are being made to contest the election of Tener at many different points in the state and if possible to secure an entire new count. Several arrests for alleged crooked work at the polling place have already been made in Pittsburg and more are threatened.

The senate of 1909 had 36 Republicans, 11 Democrats and 3 vacancies. The senate of 1911 will have 38 Republicans and 12 Democrats the former gaining two votes by filling vacancies.

The state legislature will not be materially changed, although Republicans and Democrats both won several districts.

Congressmen Elected.

Pennsylvania has elected 22 Republican and 10 Democratic congressmen a Democratic gain of 7, as follows

First district, H. H. Bingham, R; 2d, Joel Cook, R.; 3d, J Hampton Moore, R.; 4th, R. O. Moon, R.; 5th, Michael Donohue, D.; 6th, George D McCreary, R.; 8th, Robert E. Diffenderfer, D.; 9th, W. W. Griest, R.; 10th, John R. Farr, R.; 11th, G. R. McLean, D.; 12th, R. D. Heaton, R.; 13th, J. H. Rothermel, D.; 14th, G. W. Kipp, D.; 15th, W. B. Wilson, D.; 16th, J. G. McHenry, D.; 17th, B. F. Focht, R.; 18th, M. E. Olmsted, R.; 19th, Jesse L. Hartman, R.; 20th, D. R. Lafean, R.; 21st, C. E. Patton, R.; 22d, Curtis S. H Gregg, D.; 23d, Thomas S. Crago, R.; 24th, H H Wilson, D.; 25th, Arthur L. Bates, R.; 26th, A. M. Palmer, D.; 27th, J. N. Langham, R.; 28th, Peter M. Speer, R.; 29th, S. G. Porter, R.; 30th, John Dalzell, R.; 31st, J. F. Burke, R.; 32d, A. J. Barchfeld, R.

Slight Interest in South Carolina.

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 10.—Slight interest was manifested in the election in this state, the vote from reports received being about as usual. South Carolina always polls a light vote in general elections, all Democratic nominations in primaries being equivalent to election.

The state ticket, led by Colman Blease, was practically unopposed. Socialists having put out a gubernatorial candidate who received a few scattering votes. A solid Democratic congressional delegation was returned. The legislature, of course, is Democratic.

Republican Governor For Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 10.—For the first time in her history Michigan has elected a governor from the upper peninsula. Charles S. Osborn, Rep., of Sault Ste Marie, has the honor, and his majority will reach about 40,000. The Republicans elected ten of the twelve congressmen. In the First district Edwin Denby was defeated by Frank Doremus, a progressive Democrat by about 2500 votes.

Idaho Elects Republican.

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 10.—The returns show the election of the entire Republican ticket, headed by Brady for governor, but by reduced majorities. French, an insurgent, seems certain of election to congress. The legislature will be Republican, but there is no United States senator to elect. The only issue is submission of a state wide prohibition amendment.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Insurgent Republican Elected Governor by 5000 Plurality.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 10.—Robert P. Bass, reform Republican candidate for governor, is elected by a plurality of 5000.

Frank D. Currier is re-elected for congress from the Second district.

Cyrus A. Sulloway is also believed to be elected from the first district by a greatly reduced majority.

The legislature will be Republican by a good margin.

There is no United States senator to be elected this year.

Democratic Gains in West Virginia.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 10.—The Democrats of West [illegible] made big gains in every section of the state, electing to congress [illegible] Davis in the First district; W[illegible] in the Second, and John M[illegible] in the Fourth. JOHN K. TENER.

Elected Governor of Pennsylvania by Reduced Plurality.

BEVERIDGE DEFEATED

Democrats Control Indiana Legislature and Will Elect Kern U. S. Senator.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 10.—Returns from Tuesday's election are decidedly more encouraging to the Republicans and there is strong probability that their state ticket is elected by a small majority. The greatest losses to the party were in the populous city districts, and when the vote of the rural sections began to come in there was a gradual change in the positions of the heads of the two tickets until the Republican candidate for secretary of state forged ahead of the Democratic opponent. While the returns may yet be changed, the Democrats are fearful of the result.

The legislature is probably Democratic on joint ballot and John K. Kern will be chosen to succeed Beveridge in the United States senate. The Democrats will control both branches of the legislature.

The Sixth congressional district went over into the Democratic column, making the delegation stand 12 to 1 in favor of the Democrats. The Tenth district represented by E. D. Crumpacker is the only district saved from the wreck.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRATIC

Sole Republican Congressman Ousted by the Democrats.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 10.—For the first time in years Virginia will be represented in the next congress by a solid Democratic delegation, Stuart the Democratic nominee in the Ninth district, having won out over Slemp the Republican incumbent, who was seeking re-election. All the other Democratic candidates were elected, including Holland, in the Second district, and Saunders, the present incumbent, in the Fifth.

A Democratic legislature also was elected to choose a successor to former Governor Claude A. Swanson who was appointed to the United States senate to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Daniel.

The state also voted on proposed constitutional amendments to make the session of the general assembly 90 days long instead of 60 days, to allow county and city treasurers to succeed themselves in office immediately; to provide that commissioners of the revenue be elected by the people and may hold office indefinitely, and to provide that a bill may be read only once at length in each house of the general assembly, instead of three times, as at present.

THE VOTE IN MARYLAND

Five Democrats and One Republican Elected to Congress.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 10.—Maryland elected five Democrats and one Republican congressman, a gain of two for the Democrats. The last delegation was composed of three Republicans and three Democrats. The congressmen elected are: First district, J. Harry Covington, Dem., re-elected; Second, J Fred Talbott, Dem., re-elected; Third, George Koenig, Dem., who succeeds John Kronmiller, Rep.; Fourth J. Charles Linthicum, Dem.; Fifth, David J. Lewis, Dem., who succeeds George A. Pear, Rep.

The tariff and high prices of food were the strong pleas made by the Democratic candidates.

HOOPER ELECTED GOVERNOR

Fusion Candidate in Tennessee Wins by 15,000 Majority.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 10.—Almost complete returns from every county are showing a majority for Ben W Hooper, fusion candidate for governor, of nearly 15,000. Democrats claim that Senator Taylor was counted out and that they will control the senate. The house is probably in control of the fusionists, but it will require figures to show who will control on joint ballot.

Republicans Carry Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 10.—The Republicans gained a sweeping victory in Wisconsin, electing F. E. McGovern, the gubernatorial candidate, by 50,000 and returning LaFollette to the senate by an even greater plurality.

Republicans Lose In Illinois.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The Republicans elected six out of the twenty five congressmen from Illinois. It was conceded that eight were still in doubt, with the probability that most of the Republicans would be defeated, and the other eleven districts were conceded to the Democrats. The Democrats have but six members in the present Illinois delegation.

FOSS ELECTED GOVERNOR

Democratic Gubernatorial Candidate Wins by 33,835 Plurality.

Boston, Nov. 10.—Congressman Eugene N. Foss was elected governor of Massachusetts by a plurality of 33,835. The remainder of the Republican ticket went into office.

The defeat of Governor Eben S Draper, the Republican nominee, is due to the agitation over the increased cost of necessities and the outcry that the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill is one of the chief causes.

The incoming legislature will show large Democratic gains, but there are still enough Republicans to insure the re-election of Senator Lodge, even should there be a fusion of Democrats and what few anti-Lodge Republicans who may have crept in.

WILSON WINS IN NEW JERSEY

Democrat Gubernatorial Candidate Elected by 45,000.

U. S. SENATOR IN DOUBT

The Democrats Will Have Control of the Legislature and Elect a United States Senator to Succeed Senator Kean.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 10.—The Democratic landslide in New Jersey was the most complete political upheaval which has taken place in the state.

Although a Democratic victory had been scented its magnitude, reaching into every Republican stronghold in the state and overturning in many instances local party governments, had not been predicted by even the most optimistic of Democrats. Even the personality of Woodrow Wilson was not sufficient to account for the Republican slaughter.

Returns received at the state house indicated that the plurality of Dr. Wilson for governor is nearly 45,000. It would not be surprising if complete returns raised the plurality by another thousand or two.

The highest plurality ever received by a governor was E. C. Stokes, who carried the state by 51,644 six years ago. That was the year that Roosevelt received 80,585 plurality. Mr Wilson received a plurality in fifteen of the twenty one counties, only four of which have been rated as Democratic since the upheaval of 1895 when the Democrats were forced out of power by the election of John W Griggs. The Democrats also carried seven of the ten congressional districts.

Lewis had expected the large commuter vote in North Jersey to go heavily against him but believed he would more than make up these losses in the Republican strongholds of South Jersey, especially in Camden and Atlantic counties.

When the Camden county voting machine returns showed that Lewis was running far behind Fort and figures from several of the other usually very strong Republican counties were likewise discouraging to the Republicans, they saw it was only a matter of how great would be Wilson's plurality.

Not even the most sanguine of the election prophets in Democratic ranks had predicted returns so favorable to Wilson, and the Republican leaders at the headquarters here attributed the overthrow of their candidate as largely due to the great feeling of unrest and the Democratic landslide that had been threatening for some time to sweep the country.

What is considered by some as a master stroke on the part of the Wilson campaign managers came to light when it was noted that the packages of Wilson "stickers" for use on Republican ballots bore the "union label" trademark. Most of the Lewis stickers likewise bore the label, but in Wilson's case it was especially significant by reason of the question that arose during the campaign as to whether the Democratic nominee was a friend of organized labor.

CONNECTICUT DEMOCRATIC

Democratic Candidate, Who Was Scored by Roosevelt, Elected Governor.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 10.—Judge Simeon E. Baldwin, Democrat, was elected governor of Connecticut by a plurality of 3000.

The congressional seat in the Second district so long held by N. D. Sperry, dean of the house, was captured by Thomas L. Reilly, Democrat.

The Republicans have so many local fights on their hands that indications point to a gain of from 60 to 70 seats in the general assembly for the Democrats. The use of the Australian ballot for the first time at a general election and the expected closeness of the vote for governor have raised speculation as to the possibility of the election being thrown into the courts over protested ballots thrown out by local moderators.

Light Vote in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 10.—While a light vote was cast over Kentucky, the Democrats carried the following districts: First, Ollie M James, Dem., no opposition; Second, A O Stanley, Dem.; Third, Thomas, Dem., district normally Republican; Fourth, Johnson, Dem.; Fifth, Sherley, Dem. All of the above congressmen were re-elected.

Stubbs Re-elected In Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 10.—Governor W. R. Stubbs, Republican, was re-elected by a decreased majority over George Hodges.

Six or eight Republican congressmen will be returned, it appears. The districts in doubt are the Third and the Sixth, in which P. P. Campbell and I. D. Young, Republicans, are opposed by Henderson Martin and Frank Rockefeller.

Local Optionist Wins in Alabama.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 10.—Later returns show that Emmet O'Neal, Democratic local optionist, was elected governor over J. O. Thompson, Republican prohibitionist, by over 20,000 majority. A solid Democratic delegation to congress from this state has been re-elected.

CALIFORNIA REPUBLICAN

Insurgents Elected Governor by 15,000 Majority.

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—California went Republican by 15,000, elected a full quota of Republican congressmen and the legislature will choose a Republican senator in place of Senator Flint.

But although the party emerged triumphantly from the bitterest campaign seen here in years, it is considerably disfigured, and old line Republicans have the mortification of seeing in the governor's chair one of the most rampant of the insurgents, who will use all his power to advance the interests of his wing of the party.

Result In North Carolina.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 10.—Steadman, Dem., for congress in the Fifth district, polled heavier majority than was anticipated. May reach 2500, defeating Blair, Rep., for seat now held by Morehead, Rep. Cowles, Rep., in the Eighth, is re-elected by reduced majority. It is impossible to tell at present whether Grant, Rep., is re-elected in the Tenth. Majority will not be over [illegible] either way. McIntosh, Rep., polled heavy vote in the Ninth, but Webb, Dem., is re-elected. The state went Democratic by [illegible],000.

WINS IN NEW JERSEY.

Woodrow Wilson, Democrat, is Elected Governor.

CONGRESS DEMOCRATIC

Republicans Lose Probably Enough to Cost Them Contest.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Complete returns on the election of representatives in congress indicate that the Democrats will have a working majority of sixty in the next house.

The number of Democrats elected to congress according to the latest returns, is 221. The Republican representation will be 169, or five seats less than the Democrats now have in the Sixty-first congress.

The Democrats will have a clear working majority in the house and the Republicans will barely control the senate. If the progressive Republicans vote with the Democrats the control of the senate in the next congress also is lost to the Republican party. Then President Taft may have both houses to contend with instead of to help him with his administration program.

Another notable fact in connection with the next house will be the presence for the first time of a Socialist congressman, Victor L. Berger, from the Fifth Wisconsin district (Milwaukee).

The greatest gain in any one state was in New York, where the present delegation of twelve Democrats was increased by ten, making the division as to New York in the next house 22 Democrats and 15 Republicans. The representation from New York in the Sixty-first congress is 25 Republicans and 12 Democrats.

The next largest increase was in Illinois, where the Democrats on the face of the returns made six gains.

In Pennsylvania the Democratic gains were 5, New Jersey 4, Ohio 4, North Carolina 2, West Virginia 2, Missouri 2, Maryland 2, Maine 2, previously elected, and one each in Connecticut, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Oklahoma and Rhode Island.

MINNESOTA REPUBLICAN

Democrats Go Down to Defeat Under Old-Time Majority.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 10.—While Republican nominees were going down to defeat before a Democratic landslide elsewhere conditions were reversed in Minnesota, where Adolph O Eberhart defeated his Democratic opponent, James Gray, for governor by an old-time majority.

For three state elections the late John A. Johnson, Democrat, carried the state by overwhelming majorities. The latest figures show that Eberhart has been elected by more than 50,000. He carried every county in the state. The legislature is Republican.

Hammond, Democrat, is the only Democrat elected to congress.

Rhode Island Republican.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 10.—Governor A. J. Pothier is re-elected. The vote for governor was Pothier, Rep 33,492; Lewis A. Waterman, Dem., 32,589. The Republican majority of 11,759 is thus cut down to 903. The Democrats elected to congress for the First district George F. Shaughnessy, while the Republicans won with General H Utter in the Second. The next assembly will be deadlocked over the election of a successor to Senator Nelson W. Aldrich.

North Dakota Republican.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 10.—This state has elected a Republican legislature, which insures the re-election of McCumber to the United States senate, and the election of Congressman Ronna to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Johnson. Both Republican candidates for congress have won.

HARMON CARRIES OHIO

Democratic Governor Re-elected by 75,000 Plurality.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 10.—Ohio joined in the Democratic landsliding by re-electing Governor Judson Harmon by a plurality which the Democratic state headquarters estimates at better than 75,000.

The state ticket under the governorship is in doubt, but will apparently be Democratic. The legislature also is in doubt, though Democratic victories in Lucas, Hamilton, Cuyahoga and other big counties indicates a possible Democratic majority on joint ballot.

The election of only a few congressmen is assured, those certainly elected being: J. H. Goeke, Dem., Fourth district; W. A. Ashbrook, Dem., Seventeenth; James M. Cox, Dem., Third; Nicholas Longworth, Rep., First. Jas. Cassidy, Twenty-first, and Paul Howland, Twentieth, both Republicans, are probably defeated by R. H. Bulkley and William Gordon, Democrats.

DELAWARE REPUBLICAN

Insures Re-election of Dupont to United States Senate.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 10.—Complete returns show that Delaware is Republican by a majority of 1800. Congressman William H. Heald is re-elected and the legislature shows four Republican majority on joint ballot, an increase of two, compared with the majority the Republicans had on joint ballot in the last legislature.

The new legislature will elect a United States senator, and Colonel Henry A. Dupont will in all probability be re-elected. He is slated for the place.

Andalusia Articles.

The Reverend William Glenn, of Maryland, has been visiting at Charles Biddle's.

The "Moovies" as a patron familiarly called them the other day, meaning thereby the motion pictures, will be exhibited tomorrow evening, Saturday, as usual.

On Wednesday evening of next week, the 16th, there is to be a free lecture at the King Library on Alaska, by the Rev. Charles E. Bettlcher, who has been a missionary to those parts for five or six years, now on a visit East.

Mrs. Mary Rankin, wife of Samuel Rankin, died last week in Andalusia of heart failure. Mrs. Rankin had been for some time a sufferer from the disease which ultimately proved fatal. Her husband and family have the sympathy of many friends.

Mr. Eastman asks his friends to remember the annual gathering together of Christmas cards for the colored children of the south. He has received pleasant and generous response in the past and hopes for a continuance of the same spirit of kind thoughtfulness.

Arthur Allen, of the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School in Philadelphia, was the preacher at the chapel on last Sunday morning, Mr. Edwards conducting the service. Mr. Allen is the Lay Reader at St. James Church, Bristol, during the vacancy there obtaining at the present time.

The opening meeting for the season of the Junior Auxiliary will take place tomorrow afternoon at Holy Trinity Church, 19th and Walnut streets, Philadelphia. The delegates from here will leave the Red Lion Terminal at 1.30. They will go to the parish house on 19th street, and will march thence in a body with all the other delegates into the church.

John Levensedge, the sexton of All Saints Church, had a serious accident on Hallowe'en, from which he is just beginning to recover. Going to Holmesburg to make some purchases, as he was descending the hill something happened to his lamps, which threw the wheel of his bicycle over and he was thrown off, cutting his face and body so badly that some twenty or more stitches had to be taken in them.

James O'Donnell, a young boy of the village, met with an accident on Friday afternoon, which came near proving fatal. He jumped off a wagon and alighted in the path of an automobile, which was not able to stop at the unexpected obstacle. Fortunately he escaped with a few severe cuts and contusions which we believe were easily remedied. The driver of the machine immediately carried him up to Dr. Cartel's, where he was attended to and the boy was soon followed by his mother, who brought him home.

Parkland Pointers.

Mrs. Edward Reineck was a business visitor in the city on Tuesday.

B. Frank March is engaged in repairing the windmill on the heights.

Mrs. Harry Wilcke, of Holland, was visiting friends here one day last week.

Miss Lillian Greenlee spent a few days with friends in Trenton, last week.

Miss Elizabeth Reineck spent a few days last week with friends in the city.

Mrs. Clarence Schock and children spent a few days in Philadelphia last week.

Miss Rachel T. Park, of Linwood, is visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Annie Brady.

After spending the summer at this place, William A. Grosseck's mother has returned to her city home.

Mrs. Marcia M. Gooding has returned to her home in the postoffice building, after spending the summer in New York State.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Gauker, of Philadelphia were week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goodman, on avenue A.

Mrs. Emma Sweeny gave a Hallowe'en party at her cottage on the town grounds in honor of her granddaughter, Miss Emma Birck. Mrs. B. Birck acted as hostess, entertaining the following guests: Miss Marion Crossdale, Miss Florence Schissler, Miss M. Ennis, Edward Pierson, Joseph Gebhard, Albert Winter and Rudolp Winter. With singing, music and dancing and many good things to eat, a most delightful time was spent.

Sunday School Convention at Point Pleasant

The fortieth annual convention of the Bucks County Sabbath School Association, representing 165 Sunday schools of all denominations, and a membership of about 25,000, will be held on Saturday, November 19, at the Point Pleasant Baptist Church.

The morning session will begin at 10 o'clock, with a service of song led by Prof. Adam Giebel, assisted by F. I. Miller, of Philadelphia. Rev. W. W. Sweet, of Langhorne, will deliver an address on "The Leadership of the Child." Reports of District officers will be heard at the morning session.

The afternoon session will open at 2 o'clock. Prof. Geibel will give an address on "Sunday School Music." General Secretary W. G. Landes will address the convention on "The Sinews of War." Rev. Dr. Charles Roads, of Philadelphia, will be heard on "Three Mountain Peaks in Sunday School Advance." Dr. Roads was formerly General Secretary of the Maryland State Sunday School Association, and has lately been awarded a prize of $1000 for a work on "Rural Christianity." Rev. Dr. C. H. Woolston, of Philadelphia, will also appear on the afternoon programme, and will give two addresses—one on "The Art of Object Teaching," and the other an illustrated talk to the children entitled "That Ship of Mine and Its Wonderful Sails." This address has been delivered by Dr. Woolston at many large conventions. The county officers will give reports in the afternoon.

At the evening session, which will begin at 7.30, the Rev. Scott R. Wagner, of Riegelsville, will deliver the principal address on "The Sunday School Worker's Commission." Mr. Wagner has been heard at State conventions and is a popular speaker.

All persons desiring transportation to and from Danboro and Point Pleasant will be required to notify D. G. Gross, Danboro, prior to the convention.

Emil Seidel, the mayor of Milwaukee, said in a recent speech: "Some people hold that alcohol is to blame for the poverty and wretchedness we see around us. That is as illogical a view as one I heard put forth by a newsboy the other day. As I waited on a corner for a car a bootblack said to a newsboy: 'Bill, how is it the sea don't run over when all the rivers runs into it?' 'Why, ye chump,' Bill answered, 'don't ye know the sea is full of sponges.'"

The class had taken up the subject of the rulers of the world. The President of the United States, the King of England and their powers and functions had been discussed. Suddenly the teacher said: "Now, Willie, what's a kaiser?" "A kaiser," replied the absent-minded Willie, whose long suit was geography instead of political history, "is a stream o' hot water springin' up and disturbing the earth."

Penn's Manor Locals.

John R. Stinson was a business visitor to Philadelphia on Monday of last week.

The monthly business meeting of the C. E. Society was held in the chapel on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. William C. Mershon and Miss Wenonka Burek were Sunday guests of Frank E. Mershon and family, of Morrisville.

"The war against the saloon; enlist!" is the Christian Endeavor topic for Sunday evening, to be led by Miss Mary Baker.

On account of the stormy weather on Thursday of last week the Lunch social to be held in the chapel was postponed until Wednesday of this week.

Rev. John Girton preached an effective sermon in the chapel last Sunday evening from the text I King 21:20. The choir sang: "Tell Me the Story of Jesus."

Mr. and Mrs. William Booth entertained the following at their home last Sunday: Howard Firth and family, of Fieldsboro, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilkes, of Perth Amboy, N. J., and Albert Wilkes and family, of Penn Valley.

Milne: People never discover what a corrupt thing society is until they can't get into it.

NEWTOWN NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hampton have gone to Los Angeles, California, to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Geer are spending this week in New York, visiting the former's relatives.

The public schools opened again on Monday morning, the children were refreshed from a week's vacation.

The Friends Association held its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening at the meeting house.

William Mawson spent a part of last week at his home here. They have been summering at Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Kenderdine have issued invitations to a number of friends for Saturday evening, the 12th.

Misses Fannie and Carrie Scarborough visited their sister, Mrs. Harry Krusen, at East Orange, N. J., last week.

Mrs. Eleanor Sharpless, of Darby, attended Friends meeting here on Sunday morning and spoke very acceptably.

George Washington Primrose, thinking of matrimony and trembling on the edge, wrote to his married brother, Rufus, for advice. "Dear Jawje," wrote Rufus in reply, "every man shud marry. A wif is a man's gratest gift. She suthes his trubbles, dubbles his joys and helps him every wich way. The maried life is the only lif speshully when you is forchunate enuff for to git a jool of a wif like mine. P. S.—Mandy has jess stept out. You blame fule you, Stay Single!"

Stomach Troubles Cured by Vinol

"I suffered so long from stomach trouble and indigestion, that I lost flesh rapidly—VINOL cured me after everything else had failed. It strengthened my digestive organs—gave me a hearty appetite, and I can eat anything without the slightest distress. I do not believe anything equals VINOL for stomach trouble and indigestion."

W. E. WATERHOUSE, Portland, Me.

Mr. Thos. G. Wallace, of Detroit, Mich., writes, "I suffered for years from a chronic stomach trouble. VINOL entirely cured me after everything else had failed."

It is the curative medicinal elements of the cod's liver, combined with the strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in VINOL, which makes it so successful in restoring perfect digestion, and at the same time building up the weakened run-down system.

Try a bottle of VINOL with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

Adam Geibel to Lecture.

Professor Adam Geibel, the well-known blind composer of secular and sacred music, will deliver his popular recital lecture in the Emilie Methodist Episcopal church, on Wednesday evening, November 16. In this lecture, Mr. Geibel tells the story of his life, cause of blindness, early struggles, how he was and the blind generally are educated, and how he began to compose music. He illustrates his remarkable gift of "absolute pitch" by naming any note or chord struck on the piano; also, how he dictates a musical composition. He sings and plays a number of his productions, several of which are humorous. A treat is in store for those who attend this entertainment. A silver offering will be taken.

When J. P. Morgan was in his fifties he had very poor health, and went to a great New York physician, who said to him: "Stop exercise in every form. Never even walk when you can take a cab. You have formed the habit of living without exercise, giving your energy to your brain. It is too late to change the habits of a lifetime." This advice Mr. Morgan followed implicitly. Since that time he has absolutely shunned exercise; has eaten heavily and smoked much—and has buried all his own business generation and remains robust at 73.

REAPING BENEFIT

From the Experiences of Bristol People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Bristol residents on the following subject will interest and benefit thousands of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

William A. Michener, 528 Swain street, Bristol, Pa., says: "It affords me great pleasure to confirm the public statement I gave two years ago recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Nothing has happened during the time that has since passed to alter my high opinion of this preparation. My two children were afflicted with a most annoying kidney weakness and steadily grew worse. There was no control over the kidney secretions and this proved that the kidneys were weak. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I decided to try them and procured a box at Erthal's Pharmacy. Their use brought relief in a remarkably short time and before long my children were restored to good health. I am grateful to Doan's Kidney Pills for their good work in these two cases."

THE RESULT.

[illegible] victories throughout the country on Tuesday approached [illegible] a landslide in their [illegible] venes.

[illegible] by Democrats in Congress, Massachusetts, New York, [illegible], Ohio, Indiana and elsewhere cannot be classed as genuine [illegible] for Democracy. In the Republican States mentioned millions of [illegible] went to the polls on Tuesday [illegible] their votes in a manner to [illegible] their protests against the Taft [administration] as dominated by the [illegible] interests of the country. And [in these] states, with a single exception, the Democratic ticket furnished the only medium of protest. In nearly every Republican state in the [Union] where an election was held, except where insurgent candidates were on the ticket, the Democrats were sweeping victories.

In Pennsylvania, notwithstanding a divided opposition, the Republican candidate for Governor was only elected by the grace of the fraudulent votes cast in the city of Philadelphia.

Bucks county repudiated the Tener ticket and gave a plurality to Senator [illegible] but by the expenditure of an alleged sum of $25,000 the Republican county ticket was elected.

A Democratic House of Representatives will undoubtedly undertake, at its first opportunity to really revise the tariff downward, the infamous woolen schedule to be the first object of revision.

New Hampshire is one state wherein Mr. Roosevelt made speeches that did not go Democratic.

Four years ago the Grundy organization directed the full force of the machine to save Congressman Wanger, and the Republican candidate for State Senator was defeated. This year the machine strength was put behind the Republican State Senatorial nominee and Congressman Wanger was defeated. Although this machine is possessed with great dollar power it really is not endowed with much wisdom. A few greenhorns in politics, with less than a hundred dollars to use in the campaign made it possible and accomplished the defeat of Congressman Wanger. If ever the true story of the Keystone campaign in Bucks and Montgomery counties is written, it will prove to be one of the most interesting chapters in the history of local politics.

The tariff is like charity—it covers a multitude of sins.

MISSING THE POINT.

The complaints from farmers that life in the rural districts is not as pleasant as pictured by those who favor the "back to the land" movement, miss the point entirely. There is no room for discussion over the question raised by those who contend that farm life has discomforts that make it uninviting to young men and young women. Certainly the young people find the city more attractive under present conditions. Otherwise there would be no need for the "back to the land" movement.

Philosophers and logicians, magazine writers and civic workers may speculate to their hearts' content on theories as to why the rural communities lose population and the cities gain what the country loses. But the real reason is so obvious as to make speculation unnecessary and absurd. The loss to the rural communities is occasioned because the young men and women from the farms prefer the city under any circumstances rather than rural life under present conditions.

To make the farm life attractive and inviting from the standpoint of comfort and convenience is quite as necessary as to make it profitable, because the rush from country to city is not inspired by reason of the fact that people can "do better" in the town than on the farm. The young man who goes to Philadelphia or any other city and works for $60 a month knows that he could save more money out of a $30 wage on the farm. But he refuses to endure the handicap of country life for the sake of making more money. To induce him to join the back-to-the-soil movement the handicap must be eliminated.

If farm homes were all modern, if country highways were always as traversible as city streets, if one-half the labor now used to till the soil would produce double the profits now realized, if forty acres would return greater net proceeds than one hundred acres now return, and if every rural community had a modern school and community library, does anyone imagine that there would be a rush from country to town?

There has been too much weight given to "profits" in seeking the remedy for the decrease in rural population. The problem set for the agricultural colleges is to show the young men and women that there is opportunity for something else in farm life than the accumulation of a bank account at the sacrifice of other things that make life worth the living.

Hon. Clarence J. Buckman demonstrated at the election that he possesses a greater degree of popularity, as attested by the ballots, than his colleagues on the ticket. The Senator-elect received the highest number of votes on the Republican ticket and Representative-elect Gilkeson received the least.

Out of the wreck of the Republican Congressional election, throughout the county it may be of interest to note that "Uncle Joe" Cannon emerges unscathed and triumphant. In the 62d Congress he will be one of the obedient subjects of Speaker Champ Clark.

The campaign which closed in Bucks county on Tuesday was marked by the successful strategy of a little organization opposed to the Republican machine. The first realization of the workings of the contest now beginning to dawn upon the minds of those deeply interested in Congressman Wanger's political welfare.

[illegible] represent [illegible] the [illegible] Southwest and the interested [illegible] The Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce says:

"It is considered that if tariff duties are adequate to protect those shepherds who are raising sheep for wool they are entirely adequate to protect those whose primary product is something else and to whom wool is merely an incidental crop. In studying the cost of the sheep farms in the way indicated, full attention is intended to be given to by products and the like, so as to allow for the conflicting elements which detract from accuracy of results under ordinary conditions.

Such an inquiry as this ought to serve rather strikingly to illustrate the futility of trying to revise the tariff in a scientific manner on a strict or even approximate basis of difference in the costs of production between this country and abroad, says the Springfield Republican. If the agents of the tariff board go to the far Southwest they will doubtless find some sheep ranches [illegible] land is so cheap that wool can be produced profitably in free competition with wool from the plains of Argentina. The present wool tariff or any wool tariff would offer excessive protection and [illegible] revision would compel its abolition.

But in the same board it [illegible] doubtless be found sheep growers where land and other elements are more expensive and some tariff protection may seem to be needed. It is this case to determine what the wool duties shall be, as against the other case? Let the investigation drift northeastward, say into Ohio, formerly a great wool growing state where wool production has been on the decline for years under high protection. Here will obviously be found plenty of farms where land and other factors have become too expensive to make sheep raising for wool alone profitable even under the present high tariff and wool [illegible] still the tariff on wool, therefore [illegible] to even higher figures in order to restore sheep-raising where it is now on the decline from lack of profit [illegible] high enough to be stimulating.

Here especially and so it must be to a large extent in other [illegible] great variety of standards in [illegible] cost of production will be found. Which is to govern in fixing the tariff to equal differences in cost between this and other countries. The plants or farms most favorably situated for any production in question [illegible] most unfavorably situated. If the former, then it may appear that tariff protection is needed. If the latter, then it can be shown that higher rates than now exist [illegible] all for by this great scientific principle of revision. If an average is to be struck for all plants or farms, how is the market [illegible] formed unless it be assumed that the existing duties have determined the situation, in which case all such inquiries as the one projected would be labor and money wasted.

There can be no scientific revision of the tariff on such a basis as this. One reason has been suggested. Another reason is that the existing duties themselves are a large element in making American costs of production high comparatively and the problem is thus made [illegible] of adjusting something [illegible] way to revise the tariff will [illegible] abolish it, as the other great industrial nations with whom we compete have none—giving to the people cheaper and better clothing [illegible] thereby increasing the consumption of wool, wherein the [illegible] wool growers would be largely compensated for any direct loss [illegible] from the removal of the protective duties.

It was said during the campaign that "Bucks county needs a Republican Senator." We will now [illegible] and his record in the upper [illegible] of the State Legislature will [illegible] compared with that of his Democratic predecessor, Senator Wert [illegible] for whom Bucks county never [illegible] cause to regret his eight year[s].

The plan which President Taft and Postmaster General Hitchcock agreed upon in regard to postage rates for magazines will strike disinterested persons as fair [illegible]. It would let the weight of [illegible] matter in magazines go at the rate of one cent a pound [illegible] impose higher rates on the [illegible] the weight involved in the [illegible] ing pages. Magazines [illegible] mainly of reading matter [illegible] a secondary or incidental [illegible] advertisements would not [illegible] increased postage over the [illegible] cent-a-pound rate. Those [illegible] largely composed of advertising would pay materially higher [illegible] of course they should [illegible] mainly or largely engaged [illegible] seminating knowledge [illegible] justification of the low [illegible] but in disseminating advertising of private business [illegible] average haul of magazine [illegible] postal service is 1100 miles, that of daily newspapers [illegible] miles. The cent a pound [illegible] stantially covers the cost of [illegible] the daily newspapers for the [illegible] atively short haul, but it [illegible] to meet the cost on the average [illegible] zine haul. There is [illegible] for making the circulation [illegible] publication a heavy burden [illegible] postal service to be made [illegible] other postal charges or from taxation, and it is to be [illegible] lishers will coincide with the [illegible] the administration as expressed [illegible] proposed plan. It is a more [illegible] of that presented to Congress [illegible] ago and will deal more lightly [illegible] legitimate magazine publication.

ROBERT E. DIFENDERFER

Democratic Keystone Candidate Elected Representative in Congress from the Bucks Montgomery District.

COUNTY SEAT NEWS

Doylestown Correspondent Reviews the Election. Bristol Cases in Court Next Week.

Doylestown, Nov. 9, 1910.

The election is over at last but for some reason the Grundyites at the county seat are not happy. They succeeded in electing their whole county ticket including Clarence, but at the cost of living Postponed Wanger's defeat by a very substantial vote. His competitor Difenderfer leading him by about seven hundred and fifty votes in the district. Clarence pulls through with a plurality of about the same number.

On Monday evening the last caucus of the county seat ward workers was held in the Grundy Club and Oscar read from typewritten manuscript Grundy's final orders with a postscript from Pete giving some practical advice. The document began and ended with positive orders not to let Wanger fall behind his ticket and if desperate means were necessary to hold him up to use them so that on election day quite a few licks were put in for him and when the meeting convened after the polls closed one and all felt certainly satisfied that Pete could not call the county's [illegible] down for anything that might happen to Irving P. But in spite of all their care Wanger lost the borough by forty-two majority, coming next to Grim and James.

A committee of investigation was appointed and by the time Pete arrives on the scene of battle there will be a complete explanation.

Wanger's defeat means a whole lot more to the gang than that of any two men on the ticket. As Grundy's Washington mouthpiece and information bureau, he was invaluable and cannot be replaced so that instead of jubilation prolonged and loud there was a tinge of sorrow and a fear of a blowing up in the gang that left Grape Hall election night. This was the most expensive campaign that Joe has ever had to pay for and when the bills are all O. K'd by Oscar there will be trouble. The force of information disseminators alone must have been a fierce expense not to count the cost of coal and barrels of flour that found their way into certain people's cellars, as a straight gift of course. The presentation coming so close to election had no political significance. And then the Democrats in the upper end men who would not sell their vote, oh no but who would agree to stay at home and husk corn or visit, or become ill enough were not able to bear the fatigue of casting a ballot but entirely strong enough to hold the cash consideration tendered them.

Of course there were some and the returns show it, who were bought out and out at varying prices, some of them must have come high, but they were worth it. There were over fifteen hundred Democrats who didn't vote Tuesday in the upper end, some of them men who were active politicians up to a week or ten days before election. This was especially true in Senator Grim's home district of Nockamixon where in some parts they voted home in blocks of ten. A tried and trusted adherent of the gang went through Nockamixon and Bridgeton taking night time for his trip. Just about the time these Democrats became lukewarm.

But what of the future? At the county seat there are several bright young Republicans who want to mix in the "game of politics" that have been remorselessly shut out by the leaders. One of the number expressed himself freely on Tuesday night and said: "Do you think I don't know why they have no use for us in their political councils? Well I will tell you—everyone of us has an independent streak in him and would not be reliant of carrying out Grundy's orders along some dirty lines, than we would of committing suicide." They all agree that they were powerless without a permanent organization and propose to organize an anti-Grundy club to which no one but a full fledged Republican will be eligible as a member, then put up nominees at the primaries and try to educate the people to vote against the gang candidates and put up Republicans who do not wear the collar. Of course they won't succeed, but it is another chance for Joe to use his check book and buy up their candidates. They had a chance this time to purge their party of its rank bossism but failed to avail themselves of the opportunity. Of course next time is another time, but condition may not be so favorable, although some of the "has been" ex-office holders are kicking.

Next week will begin the November term of criminal court, but it is hardly likely that Judge Stout will preside over it. He has been confined to his home for some time, although he did get out to vote. There had been a court fixed for Monday which he could not attend and the county commissioners were notified to be at the county seat on Thursday to count the vote. Judge Stout is an able and conscientious Judge his greatest failing is that he will work too hard, frequently doing work that the attorneys in the case should do.

There are twenty six cases for trial next week, the Weaver arson case being the most important one except the Workman case, in which the charge is an assault on a little girl. Another case somewhat sensational will be that of James H. Baker, of Bristol, who is charged with a murderous assault upon Franklin Gilkeson, a member of the Bucks County Bar. The list of cases as furnished by District Attorney William C. Ryan, is as follows:

Paul Workman, rape.
Elias Boddy, assault and battery with intent to kill, aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery.
Charles Dordes, nuisance and resisting officer.
Joseph N. Scott, false pretense.
Adolf Hoffman, larceny and receiving stolen goods.
James Harrison Baker, attempt to shoot with intent to commit murder.
Carey Campbell, larceny and receiving stolen goods.
Harry Woolman, incest, adultery and bastardy.
John Werkassecke, assault and battery.
Ellinger Buck, f[raud] and b[illegible].
John Murphy, surety.
John Hopkins, surety.
William Brooks, aggravated assault and battery.
William Stewart, aggravated assault and battery.
James Hennessy, larceny and receiving stolen goods.
Joseph J. Bunkle, desertion.
William J. Coghlan, assault and battery.
Mamie Blessing, nuisance.
Selah Wilhelm, nuisance.
Kate Shuman, assault and battery.
Harvey Shuman, surety.
Margaret Phenix, assault and battery and nuisance.
Ceeyle Williams, assault and battery and nuisance.
Anna Field, assault and battery and nuisance.
Fannie Ziegler, alias Fannie Smith, larceny and receiving stolen goods.

It is expected that Judge Staples, of Stroudsburg, Monroe county, will preside and hurry the cases off in short order and long sentences.

Doylestown borough council took nearly ten years to decide on the erection of a standpipe and unless something is done will spend the same time in its erection. The material has been on the grounds for over two weeks together with an army of from three to five workmen. The riveting together of the bottom of the standpipe is progressing with great rapidity, a compressed air riveter is used and fastens a rivet on an average of one to three quarters of a minute. Ten are fastened then the machine has to be shut down an average of forty two minutes until the boilers, two boilers can get up enough steam to operate the riveter. The council has a finely typewritten contract with the parties putting up the standpipe with a special clause protecting council from any damage suits that may be brought because of any injury to person or property by any reason of the erection of the standpipe, quality of material, sizes, everything that can be thought of, but one. No time is fixed for its completion and naturally the contractor has no penalty to forfeit. It is a dandy standpipe, let us hope we will all live to see it completed. Meantime the borough is paying a little more than double to have its water pumped by direct pressure to its many consumers.

The chicken supper church fair has struck the county seat with more than its accustomed force and there will be one every week from now on indefinitely, except Thanksgiving week when there will be a baseball fair to persuade the wily dime and evasive quarter from our pockets.

The county seat has met with a great loss in the resignation of the Rev. Simon Sipple, of Salem Reformed Church to accept a call to Allentown. He was universally liked by members of all denominations. A progressive, up to date citizen and an ardent christian. None but good wishes will follow him to his new home nearly as strong as our regrets at losing him.

LaFollette's Iron Brigade

Chicago Inter Ocean.

Let us give credit where it is due. We do not know of any political leader with whose principles we more thoroughly disagree, or whose aims we feel it a duty more strenuously to oppose than the principles and aims of the Hon. Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin.

Nevertheless we rise to remark, after reading our correspondent's latest report of the Wisconsin campaign that the most efficient, the most sternly disciplined and steadily courageous political organization in the United States today is that of which Senator LaFollette is the despotic master.

Mr. LaFollette is the really dangerous insurgent who must be reckoned with as long as he lives. Cummins may fall into a panic, as he did in his Chicago speech. Roosevelt may flinch, as he did when in New York he praised the same Payne Aldrich tariff that he condemned in the West.

LaFollette and his followers are not built that way. They do not set their hands to the plow and then turn back. They go through to the end of the furrow. For example, when in the insurgent uprising in the House last winter the logical next step was to turn the speaker out of the chair, the LaFollette men did not run to cover like the others. They marched straight up to the breastworks and fell across them.

These men do not seem to regard the issues their leader is forever raising as mere expedients to win with. They seem to regard them as principles to win with if possible, to get beaten for if necessary, and to fight for always. They speak cheerfully of getting beaten as part of the game.

Wisconsin's proudest memory of the civil war is her Iron brigade, on whose valor pivoted the fortunes of Gettysburg. Only three of its seven regiments were from Wisconsin, but they were its backbone.

Something of its spirit seems to have descended to the LaFollette brigade in politics. We hold its cause irrational and destructive, but it fights with a courage and discipline that commands our admiration.

The Government of the Dominion of Canada has authorized the change of name of New Alberni, B. C., to Port Alberni. This is the extreme western terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway system, and is on the western coast of Vancouver Island.

The Tone of the Bell.

What a beautiful tone that bell has!" is often heard. There are few, however, who know how a bell receives its joyful or solemn tones. All bells after they are cast and finished must go through a process of tuning the same as any other musical instrument before they respond with a clear true tone. Every bell sounds five notes which must blend together in order to produce perfect harmony. The tuning of a bell is done by means of shaving thin bits from various parts of the metal. It is as easy for an expert bell tuner to put a bell in tune as it is for a piano tuner to adjust his instrument to perfect cords. At first thought it would seem that a bell would be ruined should the tuner shave off too much at the last tuning of the fifth sound, but such is not the case. He would, however, be obliged to begin over, starting again with the first tone, and shaving the bell till it gave forth its harmonious sound at the fifth tone.—Scientific American.

You Can Work Near a Window

in winter when you have a Perfection Oil Heater. It is a portable radiator which can be moved to any part of a room, or to any room in a house. When you have a

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless you do not have to work close to the stove, which is usually far from the window. You can work where you wish, and be warm. You can work on dull winter days in the full light near the window, without being chilled to the bone.

The Perfection Oil Heater quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap, put in like a cork in a bottle, is attached by a chain. This heater has a cool handle and a damper top.

The Perfection Oil Heater has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be quickly cleaned. The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged and can be unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel, is strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

He purchased a pair of shoes in Mr. Brown's store and presented a check drawn on the Farmers National Bank for $8.46 and was given the change. The stranger made a small purchase at Mrs. Brownlee's store and gave a check for $12 and was given the change. When the checks were presented at the bank on Monday they were reported to be worthless.

John Lanzo, of Lafayette street, a workman employed by the contractors erecting the new mill for William H. Grundy & Company, fell while at work on the roof Saturday evening and sustained painful injuries. It was about dark and objects could not be seen distinctly. Lanzo made a mis-step and fell fifteen feet from the scaffolding to the floor below. His chin struck a projection and was laid open for three inches, and his knee was lacerated on an iron girder; he also received numerous other bruises. Charles Spring took Lanzo to the office of Dr. William C. LeCompte, where his wounds were dressed.

THE ELECTION IN BRISTOL BOROUGH

The Republican Organization Given a Crushing Blow.

The electon in Bristol on Tuesday passed off quietly and there were no distrubances at the polls. The Grundy organization after weeks of preparation, had each of the five polling places manned by a squad of a dozen or fifteen "workers" and every trick known to the politician was worked to add votes to the Republican ticket. Automobiles were pressed into to service and the sick were dragged from their homes and the railroad fares of residents temporarily living in other parts were paid to get them home to vote.

Notwithstanding all the efforts made by the Grundy-Minster machine, and with practically no organized opposition the normal Republican majority of 800 in Bristol was nearly obliterated.

The Republican Congressional candidate lost the Third and Fourth wards and the usual Republican majority of 250 in the First ward was reduced to 22. The heavy Republican majorities in the Second and Fifth wards were greatly reduced.

A special effort was made by the Republican organization to humiliate Rev. W. T. Johnston, Keystone candidate for the Assembly, by keeping all votes from him that was possible, but Mr. Johnston was signally honored by receiving 387 votes in the borough, 131 in Postmaster Minster's First ward, 76 in Grundy's Second ward, 102 in the Third ward, 21 in the Fourth and 57 in the Fifth.

There was considerable challenging in the First and Third wards by Keystone watchers and the bold attempt to poll fraudulent votes in many instances was frustrated.

VOTE IN THE COUNTY.

Bucks county went Republican on Tuesday by majorities for the county ticket ranging from 424 for Wanger for Congress to 1,529 for Clymer for Assembly, the latter being high man on the ticket.

Webster Grim, the Democratic candidate for Governor, carried this, his home county, by a plurality of 158. The eighteen hundred votes cast in the county for Berry would naturally have gone to Grim, if Berry had not been in the field. The vote was a great compliment to Senator Grim, who for the third time without money and with but a feeble organization carried the county.

The so-called Republican victory in the county is not the source of much gratification to the Republican organization because it knows, better than anyone else knows, at what great cost the result was accomplished.

The Gazette is familiar with many details of the organization's campaign and it can be stated that the Republican "victory" is nothing to be proud of.

The fight is over, however, and to the victor belongs the spoils. The spirit of protest is not dead in Bucks county by any means and the next contest will undoubtedly find the ranks of the dissenters filled with fresh recruits.

THE COUNTY VOTE.

The vote in the county was as follows:

Governor.

Webster Grim, D	6404
John K. Tener, R	6246
William H. Berry, K	1841
Grim's plurality	158

Congress.

Irving P. Wanger, R	7352
R. E. Difenderfer, D and K	6928
Wanger's majority,	424

State Senate.

Clarence J. Buckman, R	7558
Wynne James, D and K	6745
Buckman's majority,	813

Assembly.

Isaac Clymer,	7325
Franklin Gilkeson, R	7094
Samuel R. Kramer, D	5796
Edmund Mason, D	5618
Clymer's majority,	1529
Gilkeson's majority,	1298

W. T. Johnston, Keystone candidate for the Assembly, received 1400 votes in the county.

Burlington Poultry Association Formed.

A number of Burlington, N.J., residents interested in raising chickens and fancy stock held a meeting last Thursday evening at the residence of Charles Hillier and an organization was formed to promote the raising of choice chickens. The organization will be known as the Burlington Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association.

Nearly fifty chicken fanciers are interested in the formation of the society and it is expected fully one hundred will constitute the membership. It is the purpose to not only promote the raising of chickens, but to make that city the centre and to have an annual exhibition. The first will be held February 1, 1911, and while the exhibition will not be particularly large, yet judging from the number of interested parties, an interesting and attractive display will be made.

It was planned that monthly meetings will be held by the society and at times prominent breeders will make addresses and discussions on the subject will be held.

The officers are: President, Joseph [illegible]sick; vice-president, Edgar Lippincott; secretary, Robert Stiles; treasurer, Charles Hillier.

WANGER DEFEATED

Congressman Fails of Re-election After Eighteen Years of Service.

Hon. Irving P. Wanger, who for eighteen years has represented the Bucks-Montgomery district in Congress went down to defeat at the election on Tuesday.

The Bucks county end of the district gave Wanger the small majority of 424, as against a majority for him two years ago of 1738.

Montgomery county's majority for Difenderfer, Wanger's opponent, on Tuesday was 1166, making the latter's majority in the district 742. The total votes in the two counties was:

Difenderfer, Bucks,	6,928
Difenderfer, Montgomery,	12,862
Total,	19,790
Wanger, Bucks,	7,352
Wanger, Montgomery,	11,696
Total,	19,048
Difenderfer's majority,	742

Special Baptist Services.

Next week there will be a series of special and interesting services at the Bristol Baptist Church, of a musical, social and lecture nature.

On Tuesday evening Adam Geibel, the noted blind organist, and Mr. and Mrs. T. Stuart Hill, of Trenton, organ and violin; and vocal soloists, will contribute to the programme.

Wednesday evening will be "family night."

Thursday evening will be "church night," when Rev. Enoch Fulloway, of Philadelphia, will deliver a sermon.

On Friday evening Rev. W. H. Main, will deliver his humorous lecture, "The Folks that Live in the Basement."

On Tuesday and Friday evenings a silver offering will be taken at the door.

Heard on the Street.

I had a dream the other night and dreamed that a wealthy resident had died and left a fortune of $100,000 to the borough of Bristol for the purpose of building a sewer system. But I woke up and found—it was only a dream.—Deputy Coroner Harvey S. Rue.

Believe me, it was a great victory over Wanger.—R. R. Pearson.

Buckman was high man on the Republican ticket and Gilkeson the low man. If I had bet on that phase of the campaign, I would have wagered that the opposite would have been the result.—Postmaster Minster.

When Canal Was Built.

Editor Gazette:—Can you tell me when the canal running from Bristol to Easton was built—when the work was started and finished?

F. WALKER.

[In 1827 the Legislature passed an act for the construction of a canal from Bristol to Easton. In October of the same year a great demonstration was held in Bristol when the first shovelful of earth was dug for the canal at the point now known as No. 3 lock. The canal was completed from Bristol to New Hope in the summer of 1830 and the whole line from Bristol to Easton in 1832 at a cost of $1,374,754. It is 60 miles long, 40 feet wide and has a depth of water supposed to be five feet, and 24 locks with lifts of from 6 to 8 feet.—Ed.]

Marking Historic Sites.

Philadelphia Press.

Pennsylvania has within its borders, taking Gettysburg into account, a historic site marked with monuments more fully than any other in the civilized world. These monuments, intended to mark the precise spot where some great deed was done for liberty and for fellow-man, stand on the site of Gettysburg by the score. Much has been done in this city in the same direction, the last tablet being the one erected at Franklin's grave.

The American Historical association has appointed a committee to begin a movement toward marking the places associated with memorable incidents in American history. President Edwin Eric Sparks of the Pennsylvania state college is chairman of this committee, and has begun the work of organizing this task in this state.

Germantown already has an association which marks historic sites. Philadelphia as a whole should have one. The many sites determined at the 225th anniversary of this city should be marked by bronze tablets. It would be well if there were ward associations formed to take up every site within the ward, erect a tablet there, and unveil it with the children of the ward gathered from its schools to give them a lesson in history. The Main Line outside of Philadelphia is full of specific sites which call for monuments. The various associations over this wide expanse of large estates could profitably take this work up for each region.

This state has a number of active historical societies and an unusual interest in its history. A general organized movement would greatly increase the historical sites adequately marked.

The Poultry Yard.

Get all the leaves you can for the scratching pens.

We need new breeds when they are better than the breeds we have.

How hens do like sweet apples! Good for them, too. Share them between the hens and the pigs.

The April-hatched pullets should now be laying. They certainly are, if they have been given the proper feed and care.

If you have any little potatoes, the hens can make good use of them. Boil them up soft, and feed a ration now and then.

Let's not begin to coddle our hens with the first whiff of frosty weather. That softens them and makes them tender for the real cold that is coming.

Corn-meal mixed with skim-milk, and fed three times a day, all the fowls will eat, is the best fattening diet I have ever tried. Feed warm in cold weather.

Some farmers allow the young stock to roost outdoors during the summer and it is important that such birds be at once placed in their winter quarters.

Do not allow inferior cabbage, potatoes and beets to freeze; store them for the hens. The time is near when the will need such feeds as add succulence to the ration.

Meat scraps put up especially for the hens may be had in almost any market, and it is a very necessary egg-producing feed at this time. Crushed oyster-shells are needed, also.

Hens will do well on almost any kind of feed if they have enough of it; but they certainly can not make eggs unless they are supplied with certain necessary elements for egg-making.

Nothing ever happens without a cause. One of the things that will surely cause sickness among chickens is crowding 150 fowls into a house large enough for only fifty or at most seventy-five.

There should now be an extra allowance of corn given at night. Corn furnishes heat to the body, as it is slow to digest. For comfort during winter, the crop should remain practically filled during the entire night.

An essential to the hen's comfort in cold weather is a floor where no drafts are felt. While you are repairing the chicken house, bank it up well on the outside, and if the floor is of earth, make sure to have it higher inside than the ground without.

Needlework Guild Meeting.

The Cornwells branch of The Needle Work Guild will hold its annual meeting on Wednesday, November 16th, at 2 p. m., in Cornwells Hall. Miss Bird will address the meeting and the garments will be on exhibition. All the ladies whether members or not are cordially invited to attend.

Noted Physician Condemns Pasteurized Milk.

At a meeting of the Philadelphia County Medical Society held on Wednesday evening, Dr. J. P. Crozier Griffith, one of the most noted baby physicians in the country, and an acknowledged authority on infantile diseases, severely condemned the use of pasteurized milk.

Dr. Griffith on addressing the society, said that while he believed in pasteurized milk, the commercial article of pasteurized milk was a snare and a delusion, which remark was greeted with applause in several parts of the hall. He insisted that modification of food was more important than the administering of drugs in the effort to get rid of intestinal bacteria.

Tullytown Man Robbed While "Seeing the Sights."

"Seeing the town" under the guidance of Charles Beaton, thirty-two years old, of Vine street, near 10th street, Philadelphia, cost Andray Brimah, thirty-seven years of age, of Tullytown, last week a blow on the head that knocked him down and $50 in banknotes.

Beaton was pursued and arrested by Daly, a policeman of the 10th and Buttonwood streets station, at 1.30 last Saturday morning, as he was running away from the scene of the alleged holdup at Darien and Willow streets. Three shots from a revolver fired into the air by the bluecoat slackened Beaton's speed and brought people running from the houses in Darien street.

Brimah, according to the police, went to Philadelphia in search of work. He practiced economy by securing a room at a lodging house at 10th and Vine streets, where Beaton also lodged. The latter painted the attractions of a personally conducted tour of the tenderloin in such glowing colors to Brimah that the latter took up the suggestion. "Joy was unconfined" until Brimah displayed a wallet stuffed with greenbacks. Then Beaton is alleged to have led his new-found acquaintance to Willow street, where the box cars of the Reading Railway cast long black shadows. Brimah receiving a stunning blow on the head, he declared, and Beaton, the police and his victim assert, got the wallet and the banknotes.

Beaton was given a hearing by Magistrate Belcher, who held him for court without bail on the charge of highway robbery.

T. Stuart Hill Achieves Fame.

The Trenton Times has the following to say concerning T. Stuart Hill, formerly of Bristol, a musician well known here:

"T. Stuart Hill, one of the city's best known violinists, was born in Trenton April, 1872. At an early age he received his first musical training in the boy choirs of St. James Episcopal Church, Lancaster, Pa., and Trinity Church, Trenton. His first teacher on the violin was John N. Brown, organist of the First Presbyterian Church (a musician of deep religious feeling and high ideals), from whom he acquired a soulfulness and breadth of style that has since been the chief charm of his playing.

"After two years under the late Henry Hahn, of Philadelphia, he went abroad and entered the Guildhall School of Music, London, England, having for his sponsors in that institution such distinguished musicians as Sir Arthur Sullivan, Ernest Claire Ford and Richard D'Oyly Carte, the famous English impressario. After finishing his studies in England he returned to America and has played much in different parts of the country, gaining a wide experience in solo, orchestral and quartet work.

"Mr. Hill is organizer and director of the Trenton String Quartet Club, an organization that is working into splendid shape. Only classical music is played and gratifying results are being obtained."

Work of An Irish Sisterhood.

Among the most interesting incidents of our stay in County Mayo, were visits to this Foxford factory, which, if not yet as large as the elephantine mills at Bradford, is stocked with no mere makeshifts in the matter of plant, but with first-class machinery, spindles and looms, worked by a capable staff of alert young men and women of irreproachable morals and manners, under the supervision of religious women vowed to poverty and unworldliness, yet showing as much energy and business capacity as people stimulated merely by motives of gain. Not only this. These nuns train their "mill hands" in the same qualities, and gave them a due share of responsibility in the management of the various departments. Fair wages are paid; hours of work are regular; and so great is the demand for the goods manufactured, that never yet has there been need to work "short time"; neither is there any shirking of the normal conditions of factory life.; while it would be difficult to find anywhere a better or more carefully carried out system of bookkeeping. Government inspections of the factory there is, of course, never failing to bring government commendation. But, be it noted, no financial profit accrues to the sisterhood. What profits there are are either absorbed by improvement and extension of the plant or devoted to the needs of those who help the nuns to create them; to increasing classes in the technical school whose foundation was all outlay on the part of the convent. And now, besides classes in the usual elementary subjects, the school includes courses in cookery, laundry, poultry rearing and handicrafts, a much needed course of training fo domestic servants and a singularly successful dairy class, which has taken high honors for butter exhibits at the Royal Dublin society's show. —Catholic World.

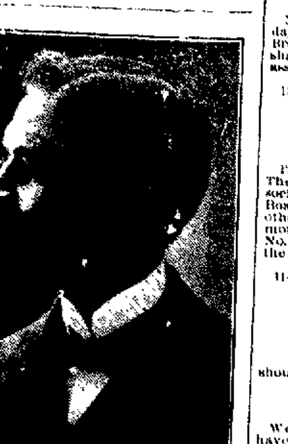

Canned Goods in Texas.

Galveston News.

That item about the shipment of a cargo of canned goods from Baltimore to Texas bobs up to smite us about once a week on an average. Only the other day the dispatches informed us that "the largest cargo yet" was then being loaded at Baltimore, and, as if to aggravate the affront, added that "another ship" would be loaded next day. If these Baltimore newspaper men had no other mission in life than to make Texas blush for its own delinquencies, the persistence with which they chronicle the departure of these cargoes of canned goods would persuade us that they were living true to the law of their birth. As for ourselves, we lost interest in these items after the first one was printed. That alone was a reproach to this state of splendid opportunities, and the iteration and reiteration of it can only emphasize and advertise our folly. For surely it is a reproach that we in Texas should have to import canned fruits and vegetables from Baltimore, or from any other place. We venture to say that if all the Texas fruit that was suffered to rot on the ground last spring had been sealed in cans, there would be no need to import even one cargo, much less five or six, from Baltimore. But even if the quantity which rotted were not enough to supply our deficiency, surely we could grow enough for that purpose; and if Baltimore canners can afford to ship us fruits that were grown in Maryland and Delaware, surely we can afford to put up fruits that are grown in Texas.

Trenton Orator to Address Men's Meeting.

W. Holt Apgar, Esq., of Trenton, N. J., will address the men's meeting at the Bristol Baptist Church next Sunday afternoon, at four o'clock. Mr. Apgar was to have addressed one of the meetings last season, but on the date he was to have been here he was confined to his bed with sickness. Mr. Apgar is a brilliant lawyer and an orator of repute. At the annual banquet of the Bristol Masonic lodge last December he was one of the guests and at that time made a memorable address.

Make it a Roll of Honor.

World's Work.

There is not a man living who would deduct a dollar from the pension of any man who suffered injury in the military service of the republic, nor from any real and natural dependent on such a man. To have suffered for the country is a badge of honor; the veteran is a man to honor; and the pension roll must be a roll of honor. With this no one will disagree.

But, precisely because the pension roll must be kept a roll of honor, we protest, and all right-thinking men will protest, against the disgrace that has befallen it, against the admission to it of deserters and other swindlers, against the debauchery of politics and the debasing of parties, whereby the present scandals have grown against the waste of millions of money, against the intrenched system of benevolence that has made cowards of us all—abject cowards of Congress and of most presidents—against the continuation and the extension of a system of "charity" that far outruns the dole of alms to the poor of any old world government, most of all against a standard of morals in politics which permits men and journals to cry out against all who tell the truth about pensions. Much of the vast sum of $155,000,000 a year has the effect of hush-money.

What a Woman Did.

Rochester Herald.

The land hogs down in New York have been taught a much-needed lesson. The courts have ordered the removal of the fronts of five buildings on Riverside drive. Four feet is to be cut from each of the buildings, and as the houses are large and expensive, the cost will be many thousands of dollars, to say nothing of the practical ruin of the front apartments, because of the reduction in size and shape.

It was an old resident of the street —a woman—who forced this reform. She had long been in enjoyment of a certain amount of "light and air." What she appreciated most, however, was an extensive view of the river. With the march of progress came the land hog. New buildings put up exhausted the limit in frontage. More daring land grabbers came after these, and encroached upon the reserve space. It was then that the woman got busy and went into court to teach the land hogs a lesson, and as all the courts have taken her view of the case, there is nothing left but a remodeling of the objectionable buildings.

Every city has its land hogs, who have no regard for the rights of the public or their neighbors. In New York they have been taught a dear lesson, and it is probable that it will be noticed and repeated elsewhere.

Emperor William was fearful of a bomb during his stay in Brussels, not so much on his own account as because he dreads to leave Europe to shift for itself.

Executors' Sale of Two Fine Farms.

The two farms belonging to the estate of Elizabeth E. Allen deceased situate in Middletown Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, will be sold at Public Sale upon the premises, on Thursday, December 1st, 1910,

FARM No. 1 adjoins lands of John P. Taylor, C. Willis Hibbs and Nathan White, on the public road leading from Bristol to Newtown, four and one half miles from Bristol and two and one half miles from Langhorne Station, on the Bound Brook Railroad and the Bucks County Electric Railway, running from Bristol to Doylestown, traversing the length of the farm. This farm known as the "Oakland Farm," contains one hundred and twenty-seven acres of land, of which twenty acres consists of fine chestnut and oak timber, and the balance is all under cultivation. The quality of the soil is excellent, having been kept well fertilized and it is particularly adapted to the growing of potatoes. There is a variety of fruit trees upon the premises.

The improvements consist of a good stone and frame dwelling in excellent repair, 40x22 feet, well of good water under cover. Also a frame hay house, 15x28 feet, just been built, frame wagon house, 60x22 feet, wood house, 30x16 feet, and all other necessary outbuildings.

FARM No. 2, known as "Pleasant Valley Farm," adjoining Farm No. 1 and lands of Samuel Richardson, Samuel Sharkey and others, is located on the public road leading from Emilie to Hulmeville on what is known as the "Frosty Hollow Road." This farm contains ninety-three and one-half acres of land, of which fifteen acres is good chestnut and oak timber and the balance is all under cultivation. The quality of the soil of this farm, like that of "Oakland," is excellent, having been kept well fertilized and in a high state of cultivation and is also well adapted for the growing of potatoes. Upon this place is a fine young orchard of three hundred and fifty peach trees, just commencing to bear fruit.

The improvements upon this farm are all good and in excellent repair, consisting of a frame dwelling, 40x18 feet, frame barn, 60x24 feet; frame wagon house, 18x24 feet; frame hay house, 12x28 feet, wood house, 20x16 feet, and all other necessary outbuildings. A fine stream of water flows through both these farms.

The sale will commence at two o'clock in the afternoon with farm No. 1. Conditions will be made known on day of sale.

Executors' Sale of Valuable Mill Property.

The executors of the estate of James L. Fabian, deceased, will sell at Public Sale upon the premises, on Thursday, November 17th, 1910,

at two o'clock in the afternoon, the valuable Mill Property, with about thirty-one acres of land attached thereto, belonging to the estate of James L. Fabian, deceased, situate in Falls Township, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, on Mill Lane road, one mile north of Tullytown. These premises are an old established flour and grist mill that have been doing business here a great many years.

The improvements consist of a stone and frame water-power flour and grist mill, the main building being 37x36 feet, with addition 12x37 feet.

Also upon the premises are a seven-room brick dwelling, 45x18 feet, with frame kitchen attached; a five-room frame dwelling, a frame carriage house, 25 feet square, and a frame chicken house.

Twelve acres of these premises are excellent farm land under high cultivation. For any one desirous of stepping into a good, paying, long-established milling business, now is the time, the opportunity, as these premises will be sold in order to close the estate.

Conditions of sale—$200 down at close of sale, balance of purchase money on April 1st, 1911. Deed at expense of purchaser.

[illegible] John's terribly ill. You [illegible] a doctor

[illegible] the words as spoken from [illegible] while in a dream, for I [illegible] working night and day with [illegible] hours' sleep each night and [illegible] Then I felt a violent [illegible] which caused me to open my [illegible] much repetition I was understand that I was to go [illegible] a doctor. I managed to [illegible] clothes, and, being told [illegible] residence of the physician [illegible] Hawthorne street, one of [illegible] stone front dwellings, I sal[lied forth]. On the way I was obliged [illegible] myself to keep sufficiently [illegible] avoid falling against objects. On reaching the block I [illegible] numbers were all in the [illegible] where no light shone upon [illegible] finally found a number that [illegible] be 28, but I could not be [illegible] to find the doctor's sign, [illegible] darkness of the street would [illegible] that I rang the bell. A [illegible] came to the door. I asked [illegible] was at home. She said [illegible] had gone out to see a [illegible] was at [the] point of death [illegible] he might be expected [illegible] she replied that he [illegible] any minute. I concluded [illegible] while and going inside sat [illegible] sofa in a far corner of the [illegible] was a light in the hall [illegible] turned low, the only light [illegible] floor.

[illegible] minutes I was sound asleep. [illegible] I heard a voice, this time a [illegible] trying to awaken me.

[illegible] We haven't a moment [illegible] father will be here in a few [illegible] and it will be too late."

[illegible] myself and stood up. A [illegible] I took mine and only partly [illegible] I heard a man's voice mum[bling] something. There was no light [illegible] hall or in the room I was in [illegible] figures could be discerned from [illegible] light came from the street. The [illegible] ending ended with the words "man [illegible] Then the soft voice said [illegible] quick."

I was led out of the house, the hand [illegible] holding mine and found a car[riage] waiting at the door. The figure [illegible] me got into it and shut the d[oor].

[illegible] number" she said "tomorrow [illegible]"

[illegible] time I was sufficiently awake [illegible] realize that something of consider[able] importance was at hand. I thrust [illegible] into my pocket where I car[ried a] box of matches, drew it forth, struck a light and revealed the [illegible] face of a girl apparently [illegible] twenty years of age.

"[illegible] heavens!" she exclaimed.

[illegible] clatter of wheels was heard coming [illegible]

"Drive on!"

The coachman whipped up his horses and in another moment my uninten[tional] bride was whirled away.

[illegible] carriage had scarcely turned a [corner] where its rattle was not so [illegible] heard when another came [illegible] down the street and stopped [illegible] the doctor's door. I concluded [illegible] having got another man's sweet[heart] I was liable to the wrath her [illegible] might be disposed to vent upon [illegible] I moved away a few paces where [illegible] could not be seen and awaited fur[ther] developments. A man jumped out [of] the carriage, ran up the steps of the [doctor's] residence and pulled the bell [illegible] Some one came to the door, [illegible] heard questions and answers but [not] with sufficient distinctness to make [out] their purport. Then the man ran [down] the steps, got into the carriage [and] was driven away.

[Notwithstanding] the seriousness of [the situation], there was something lu[dicrous] about it. While John was suf[fering] for the want of a doctor and [might] have died for all I knew, in [illegible] getting him one I had got [illegible] Could anything be more [illegible]? The curiosity that had led [me to] flash a match in my wife's face [was] what she was like prompted [me to] investigate further. As soon as [I was] sure the last carriage was at a [safe] distance I mounted the steps of [the] doctor's house and rang the bell. [A man] in clerical dress answered the [ring] [illegible] and in an irritated voice said "Well, sir?"

"Does Dr Brainard live here?"

"No, sir. Dr Brainard lives next [door], No. 28. This is 26."

I went home. My mother was the [only] one in the house still up. She was waiting for me.

"Where have you been all the time?" [she] asked impatiently.

"Mother, I'm married!"

"Married!"

"Yes, married."

"Why, I thought you went for the [doctor]."

"So I did."

"And got married instead! Oh, my goodness gracious!"

"I couldn't help it."

"Couldn't help getting married! Have you lost your senses?"

"I went to sleep."

"Oh, my dear boy," anxiously, "what [is] the matter with you?"

"I got into the house of a dominie by mistake. A runaway couple, chased by the girl's father, came to the house in a hurry, and they were married in the dark."

"What's their marriage got to do with you?"

"Nothing, except they thought I was the groom who, I suppose, was to have [met] the bride there, and before I got [fu]lly awake they married me."

"Oh, dear, oh, dear! What a terri[ble] thing to happen!"

"If you saw my wife you wouldn't [think] so."

"I thought you said it was dark and you couldn't see her."

"I struck a match just as she was [abou]t to leave me."

"Well, my son, it's nearly day. Go [to] bed and get what sleep you can be[fore] you have to get up again. I'm [sorry] for the poor girl who made the [mistake]. I hope she won't have much [trou]ble in getting her marriage with [you] annulled and being remarried to [her] rightful lover."

"I do. I hope she'll have a lot of [tr]ouble doing it."

"Why?"

"I'm satisfied."

"Oh, go to bed!"

The next day I went to see the [cle]rgyman who had married me, and [I] appointed a meeting between me [an]d my wife to take place in the room [whe]re we were married the next day. When we came together I found her very angry.

"This is simply ridiculous," she said.

"My dear, I couldn't help it," [illegible] the [illegible]

"My dear!" she repeated, [illegible] scornfully.

"What [illegible] with [illegible] other [illegible] you take me for a [illegible] to have [illegible]

"We[ll] [illegible]

[illegible] repres[ent] [illegible] gnant [illegible] is [illegible] ated or [illegible] the Inter[illegible] didates" our wed[ding]" [illegible] correspondent.

"Wedding! Do you call that a real wedding? Why, it wouldn't stand in law. That is, so my lawyer says, though one of us might make the oth[er] a lot of trouble."

"Did he say that?"

"Y-e-s, I believe he said something like it."

"Well, I'm going to make the trouble. I won't give you up."

"Nonsense!"

I saw that she was pleased. Her lover had lost her by a want of pluck. I determined to win her by brav[a]do.

"Perhaps you think your intended husband will fight for you. I'm ready to die rather than give you up." [illegible]

"Oh, no, he wouldn't fight on my account. But father! You'll find him terrible. He'll grind you to powder."

"I will have every drop of [bl]ood in his body."

"If Billy had only talked or rather acted that way!" she said sadly.

"But he didn't."

"What put it into your head that you wanted this—this so called marri[age] to stand?"

"On seeing you I swore that you should remain my wife."

"Why, it was only by the light of a match."

"It was enough."

"And you're going," she said after a pause, "to fight my application [for] an annulment?"

"Yes, and I'll fight every one who presumes to help you."

"But you certainly don't want a wife whom you haven't seen but once."

"Twice."

"Between whom and you there has been no courtship, no love passages, one whom you don't know anything about. I may be a Jezebel."

"And I may be an ogre."

She laughed.

"One thing I insist upon."

"You insist upon? What right have you?"

"A husband's right."

"Well, I declare!"

"I don't wish you to see again the man you were to have married."

"You don't eh? Well, you[']ll [co]mmand me in that, for I don't wish to see him."

"That's lucky. We shall not have to quarrel about it. But, sir[,] there is a saying 'Act in haste and repent at leisure.' Now, suppose we both drop the matter for the present. I think it likely that some legal [action] should be taken if a separation [is to] be effected, and it will require [time] to determine what that action sh[all] be. Meanwhile I ask the same [privi]leges as the man you were to [have] married and no more. I will [ask] to call upon you."

I could see that this view [of the] case was a relief to her. She gave me the permission I desired and [then] we separated by a few gestures put marks on the situation I got in laughing.

It turned out that so far as her intended marriage was concerned the episode with me that prevented it [was] a godsend. The man was [illegible] and her father knew it. When [he dis]covered my accidental part [in it] [he saw] it had saved his daughter [from] [an] alliance he became very friendly [with] me. He had a keen sense [of hu]mor which I fed. The result was [that he] took a fancy to me, took me into his business and I eventually became his son-in-law both in fact as well as in law.

Odd Street Names

In Clerkenwell, England, there is a street called Pickled Egg walk. It takes its name from Pickled Egg tav[ern], which formerly stood there and made a specialty of serving pickled eggs. An interesting London thorough[fare] is Hanging Sword alley, which is mentioned in Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities." London has also a [Her]ring street. In Leicester is a street called the Holy Bones and another called Gallows Tree Gate. Hull has a street with the extraordinary name the Land of Green Ginger. [Cal]cutta has a street named Pump [H]all and (there some years ago lived Peter [illegible]tle, a dealer in furniture. The most daring of farce writers might well have hesitated to invent a combination of name and address so impudently [apt] that which really belonged to Peter Pottle of Pump Pall.—St Ja[mes'] Gazette.

Squaring the Circle

The origin of the problem [of squar]ing the circle is almost lost in the mists of antiquity, but there is a record of an attempted quadrature in Egypt 600 years before the exodus of the Jews. There is also a claim according [to] Hone, that the problem was solved by a discovery of Hippocrates, the geom[etrician] of Chios—not the physician—500 B. C. Now, the efforts of Hippoc[rates] were devoted toward [con]verting a circle into a crescent because he found that the area of a figure produced by drawing two perpendicular radii in a circle is exactly equal to the triangle formed by the line [illegible]tion. This is the famous the[orem] [of] the "lunes of Hippocrates" and is like glauber's salts out of the philosopher's stone an example of the useful [illegible] which sometimes follow a search for the unattainable.

Power of Imagination

"The imagination is wonderful," said a college professor. "I knew a Chi[cago] man who went last summer [to] Asbury Park. He in a quaint way proved my point. He didn't reach Asbury Park till 10 o'clock at night. [He] [was] very tired, he turned in at once, [and] settled his head comfortably on the pillow he said to his wife:

"'Listen to the thunder and [the roar of] the surges, Maria. I haven't [heard] that glorious sound for forty years. No more insomnia now!'

"And, indeed, for the first time in three months the man slept like a log. But when he awoke in the morning he found that the uproar which had lulled him to sleep was the noise of a [freight yard] in the rear of the hotel. The sea was over a mile away."—Detroit Free Press.

Runciman and Henley

It is related that shortly after [Runci]man, the well known writer of sea farers and smugglers and [illegible] had bitterly fallen out with W. E. [Hen]ley he lay dying in London. [Hen]ley in Edinburgh lame and ill [sent] an indirect message that Run[ciman] believed that if Henley would [come] and look on him he would g[o in peace]. It was a dying man's whisper, [but] Henley took the train from Edinburgh and arrived in London to find his friend dead.

Under the Spell

Dashaway—A few short hours ago I was sitting with a girl telling her she was the only one in all the world I ever loved, and so forth.

Cleverton—And she believed you, didn't she?

"How could she help it? Why I be[lieved it myself."—Life]

WITH ONE HAND UNDER HIS ARM SHE SUPPORTED HIM TO A CHAIR.

Ezra Knabb, night clerk of the Vendome, busied himself sorting letters. The mail had been scattered into the key boxes once, but Ezra Knabb was very busy. Miss Morgan, the night telegraph operator, leaned over the desk, one beseeching eye on Ezra and one ear on her instrument.

"It's rather quiet tonight," observed Miss Morgan invitingly, casting an eye over the deserted tiled lobby.

Miss Morgan was tall, angular and earnest.

"Yes," assented Ezra Knabb without looking up. "Jackson Jacobs, J. Jo[hn] Johnston—"

"We've got a lot of jays with us tonight—the stock exhibit is on," she laughed.

"Yes," answered Ezra Knabb shortly.

Miss Morgan paused a moment. "It's almost o'clock g m."

"Mason Montgomery Montague Merton."

Miss Morgan was not discouraged. "Do you suppose we will get off [in] time to see the carnival parade?" she asked entertainingly.

"I don't know."

"I don't care much for—oh, that's my call. You'll excuse me a moment, won't you?" as she skipped away to answer her instrument.

"Emphatically yes," murmured Ezra Knabb under his breath as he sighed with unmeasured relief. "She['s] all right," he complained, "but it seems more natural and fitting for the male to do the courting. Yes, she means all right, but"— He dropped the sentence.

A customer came in and asked for a room with bath. Ezra fitted him out and rang for a bell hop.

"Oh here, I wish to deposit this [for] tonight," said the late guest, bringing out some papers and bills. Ezra sealed the valuables in an envelope and gave the man a numbered receipt. He turned the combination and swung the door open, then stepped inside without turning on the electric light. Just then the bell hop came back and, seeing the door open with no one in the office, gave it a vigorous push and turned the silver knob.

The bellboy was just turning away when a faraway scratching and muffled beating caught his ears. He picked up his ears and bent over with his head against the door of the vault. Then his face turned white. He looked furtively around. There was no one in sight.

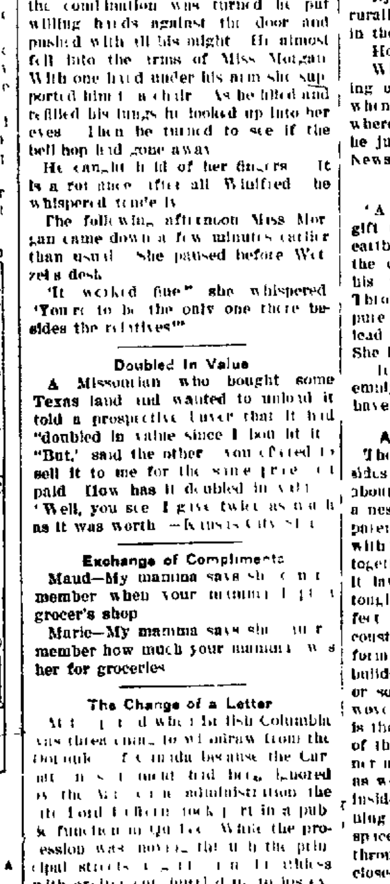

He raced out to Miss Morgan's little room. "Oh, Miss Morgan," he panted, "I think the vault door has blew shut on Mr. Knabb. If it hain't he's tryin' to commit suicide."

Miss Morgan hurried to the vault and held her head against the door. The faint hammerings could barely be distinguished.

Then she rushed to the telephone operator. "Call Mr. Higgins, quick," she commanded. Mr. Higgins was the manager of the Vendome and the only person in the hotel who knew the combination.

The telephone girl sleepily opened her eyes. "Mr. Higgins is out of town. Anything important?" She took up her pencil and pad.

Miss Morgan wrung her hands. "Mr. Knabb is suffocating in the vault

SHE HELD HER EAR DOWN AGAIN AND A SMILE CAME OVER HER FACE.

that's all." She glared at the telephone operator. "Yes, be sure to make a note of that and call it to Mr. Higgins' attention."

Miss Morgan hurried back and again bent her head against the iron door. "Boy," she called to the page, "didn't Mr. Knabb once hold a wire?"

"Guess so."

Miss Morgan raced to her desk and came back with a heavy bronze world's fair paper knife. She began to hammer with it in queer little clicks. She held her ear down again. A smile came over her face. For a moment she tap-tapped, and then came an answering series of clicks. With one hand on the silver knob she repeated aloud the message from the inside:

"A, under O—reverse to $7\frac{1}{2}$ to 12 to 6."

In a moment she swung back the heavy door. Mr. Knabb leaped out, rubbed his eyes and drew a long breath. Miss Morgan swayed lightly toward him, smiling. But Ezra Knabb pretended not to notice the hint. He kept his arms rigidly at his sides.

"That was a pretty close call," he remarked calmly, sighing with relief.

"Indeed it was," emphasized Miss Morgan. "If I had been a second"—She paused expectantly.

"Yes, that was a pretty good idea," he said, without much enthusiasm. Ezra Knabb did not seem very enthusiastic, not any more so than if he had just been telling her that her ability as an operator was slowly improving day by day.

Miss Morgan withdrew, hurt. She dragged herself back to her desk instead of skipping, as she usually went. Ezra Knabb watched her out of the tail of his eye.

"I guess I'll have to marry her now," he groaned. He sat down and sighed sorrowfully. He did not look happy, as a newly rescued man should.

It was a week later that Ezra Knabb had a heart to heart talk with Wetzel, the afternoon clerk. "The train's getting too much for me, Wetzel," he confided. "She—that thing"—he jerked his thumb toward the telegraph room—"says it's a romance, and we've got to live up to it. She says there never was a more romantic romance. She cried about it yesterday when I got cold about it. I"—

"Well?" asked the afternoon clerk to the point.

"Well, I don't think it was a romance. I think it was just an accident."

"Well?"

"I am going to prove to her that it wasn't a romance at all—that anybody could have got me out. Now, I desire [to]night I'll get in there again, and I'll have the bell hop go after you and you come and let me out easy as pie. I guess that'll show her it ain't a ro[man]ce."

Knabb [sai]d boy, she is a pretty nice girl. You'd better give her a square deal.

"I know it," whined Ezra, "but the man ought to do the advancing, according to civilization."

At last Wetzel agreed to do his part.

It was shortly before 8 o'clock Thursday morning that Ezra Knabb stepped into the vault and banged the door behind him. He chuckled as he drew it shut. The posted bellboy noticed what had happened a moment afterward and turned the silver knob. Then he ran past Miss Morgan's room shouting out the catastrophe with an admirable look of horror on his face, then he raced out and down the street to the house where the afternoon clerk roomed.

Miss Morgan hurried to the vault and tried the combination, but it had been changed.

The bellhop was back, his face blanched. "I run down after Mr. Wetzel," he puffed, "'cause he knows the combination, but his landlady said that he was dead drunk."

Miss Morgan hastened for her paper knife and began tapping.

"Wetzel['s] d[ea]d drunk. Send combination."

It was several moments before Ezra Knabb could seem to grasp the turn affairs had taken. He had no penknife to send the message with, so he took off his shoe and hammered with the heel. His message was as follows:

"A under O—reverse to $5\frac{1}{2}$ to 9 to 6."

Puffed under the eyes and short of breath, Ezra Knabb burst out. When the combination was turned he put willing hands against the door and pushed with all his might. He almost fell into the arms of Miss Morgan. With one hand under his arm she supported him to a chair. As he filled and refilled his lungs he looked up into her eyes. Then he turned to see if the bell hop had gone away.

He caught hold of her fingers. "It is a romance after all, Winifred," he whispered tenderly.

The following afternoon Miss Morgan came down a few minutes earlier than usual. She paused before Wetzel's desk.

"It worked fine," she whispered. "You're to be the only one there besides the relatives!"

The Real Need.

In negro households especially in communities where negroes form a large portion of the population it frequently happens that the woman is the head of the family, being not only the breadwinner, but also the disciplinarian, and in that capacity on occasions she regards her putative lord and master as subject to her will. This at least was the assumption of the colored woman who was a party to a little scene enacted in the office of a justice of the peace.

A man had been arrested on the charge of beating and cruelly misusing his wife. After hearing the charge against the prisoner the justice turned to the first witness.

"Madam," he said, "if this man were your husband and had given you a beating would you call in the police?"

The woman addressed, a veritable amazon in size and aggressiveness, turned a smiling countenance toward the justice and answered:

"No, jedge. If he was mah husban' an' he treated me lak he did his wife Ah wouldn't call no p'liceman. No, sah. Ah'd call de undertaker."—Youth's Companion.

Flexibility of English

English is not only, as Richard Jefferies asserted, the most expressive and flexible of tongues, but also, in Swinburne's opinion, the most musical. He proclaimed the lines—

> Music that gentlier on the spirit lies
> Than tired eyelids upon tired eyes to be unmatched for melody in any language. And few would venture to contradict such a master of music and tongues. But surely French ranks next on the roll of languages. For clearness of diction it is unrivaled and thanks to its abundance of vowels (close on one for every consonant) it flows rhythmically from the tongue. Against Wesley's dictum that French is to German as a bagpipe to an organ may be cited a saying of another famous divine, Dr. Dollinger: "L'Allemand n'est pas une langue, mais ceux qui parlent ce jargon se comprennent entre eux." (German is not a language, but those who speak this jargon understand one another.)—London Chronicle.

Facts About Giants

That very few of the giants who have ever lived have been healthy or well formed recent researches prove beyond a doubt. All we know about Goliath is that he was very tall, but in the second book of Kings we read about another giant who had more fingers than an ordinary human being, and according to modern scientists this is invariably a token of degeneracy. Marcel Donnai saw at Milan a giant who was so tall that his bed filled two beds at night, but whose legs were so weak that he could hardly stand upright. William Evans, the gigantic porter of Charles I, had little strength, and Cromwell's porter, another giant, ended his days in a lunatic asylum. Finally, O'Brien, the Irish giant, has been described as an enormous sick child who grew up too fast.

Another Fake

"Did you see the lightning calculator in the sideshow?" asked the old farmer in the wide straw hat.

"By heck, yes," drawled the other ruralite, "and he was the biggest fake in the show."

"How was that?"

"Why, there was a thunderstorm going on while I was in the tent, and when I asked him if he could calculate where the lightning was going to strike he just gave me the laugh."—Chicago News.

An Ominous Symptom

"A good wife is heaven's greatest gift to man and the rarest gem the earth holds," remarked Mr. Jarphly the other morning. "She is his joy, his inspiration and his very soul. Through her he learns to reach the pure and true, and her loving hands lead him softly over the rough places. She is—"

"Jeremiah," said Mrs. Jarphly solemnly, "Jeremiah, what wickedness have you been up to now?"

Doubled In Value

A Missourian who bought some Texas land and wanted to unload it told a prospective buyer that it had "doubled in value since I bought it."

"But," said the other, "you offered to sell it to me for the same price you paid. How has it doubled in value?"

"Well, you see, I gave twice as much as it was worth."—Kansas City Star.

The Change of a Letter

At [a] period when British Columbia was threatening to withdraw from the Dominion of Canada because the Car[n]arvon [illegible] had been ignored by the [illegible] administration the [illegible] Lord Dufferin took part in a public function in Quebec. While the procession was moving through the principal streets [illegible] with excellent humor [illegible] his excellency's attention [illegible] arch had been placed across the road so as to identify the viceroy with the approval of the disloyal inscription thereon [illegible] Carnarvon terms or Separation." [illegible]

"Now, gentlemen," said he with a smile to the committee, "I'll go under your beautiful arch on one condition. I won't ask you to do much, and I beg but a trifling favor. I merely ask that you alter one letter in your motto. Turn the S into a R. Make it 'Carnarvon Terms or Reparation,' and I will gladly pass under it." The committee yielded, and eventually Dufferin contrived to smooth over the difficulties and to reconcile the malcontents.

Fooled the Critics.

"Beerbohm Tree," said a Philadelphia critic, "at the beginning of his career undertook the part of the blind Colonel Challice in 'Alone.' Tree was a very nervous man in those days. He was always forgetting his lines. But as the blind colonel he seemed destined to be particularly nervous, and therefore he arranged with the prompter that on the first night, whenever he forgot a speech, he should snap his fingers as a signal for help.

"The first night came, and Tree forgot his lines continually. His fingers snapped all through the show like an unending package of firecrackers. He thought his career was doomed, but the next morning all the critics said of him unanimously:

"'Mr. Tree's artistic study of the blind Colonel Challice was a revelation. Never before have the habits and thoughts of the blind been so carefully analyzed and so faithfully portrayed. The entire study was perfect, even down to the nervous twitching of the fingers and the anxious listening, as though loss of sight made hearing all the more dear.'"

Retribution.

Young Father (in the future)—Great snakes! Can't you do something to quiet that baby? Its eternal squalling drives me frantic. Young Mother (calmly to servant)—Marie, bring in my husband's mother's phonograph and put in the cylinder "At Ten Months." I want him to hear how his voice sounded when he was young.

A Bird's Barbed Wire Fences

There may be seen along the road sides in Central America a brown wren about the size of a canary which builds a nest out of all proportion to its apparent needs. It selects a small tree with horizontal branches growing close together. Across two of the branches it lays sticks fastened together with tough fiber until a platform about six feet long by two feet wide has been constructed. On the end of this platform nearest the tree trunk it then builds a huge dome shaped nest a foot or so high with thick sides of interwoven thorns. A covered passageway is then made from the rest of the end of the platform in as crooked a manner as possible. Across the entrance as well as at short intervals inside of this tunnel are placed amusing little fences of thorns with just space enough for the owners to pass through. On going out this opening is closed by the owner by placing thorns across the gateway, and thus the safety of the eggs or young is assured.—Harper's Weekly.

A Selfish Proposition.

A gentleman resident at Harrow made frequent complaints to the masters of the great school there of his garden being stripped of its fruit even before it became ripe, but to no purpose.

Tired of applying to the masters for redress, he at length appealed to the boys and, sending for one to his house, he said: "Now, my good fellow, I'll make this agreement with you and your companions. Let the fruit remain on the trees till it becomes ripe and I promise to give you half."

The boy coolly replied: "I can say nothing to the proposition, sir, myself, but will make it known to the rest of the boys and inform you of their decision tomorrow."

Next day [he c]ame and brought with it this reply: "The gentlemen of Harrow cannot agree to receive so unequal a share, since Mr. —— is an individual and we are many."—London Sketch.

Only Wanted His Consent.

He was well dressed and breezy, and when he entered the private office of the great tea merchant he looked capable of doing anything from selling books to writing up insurance.

"I have come, sir," he announced without hesitation, "to get your consent."

"Consent for what?" demanded the old man without looking up.

"Well, er, you see, your daughter"—

"Oh, I understand now. So you like my daughter, eh?"

"I think she is the finest young woman I have met in many moons. As I was saying, if you'll give your consent she will have the handsomest"—

"Come, come. Don't get vain and say she'll have the finest husband if she accepts you."

"I'm married, sir. I'm trying to tell you that if you give your consent she'll have the handsomest auto runabout in town. She's dead stuck on it, and if you'll consent and put up $1,000 cash we will—"

But the great tea merchant had collapsed.—Chicago News.

The Curious Mistletoe

The story of how the mistletoe gets on the trees is a most interesting one. Covering the mistletoe twigs are pearly white berries. These come in the winter season, when food is comparatively scarce, and hence some birds eat them freely. Now when a robin eats a cherry he swallows simply the meat and flips the stone away. The seed of the mistletoe the bird cannot flip. It is sticky and holds to his bill. His only resource is to wipe it off, and he does so, leaving it sticking to the branches of the tree on which he is sitting at the time. This seed sprouts after a time and, not finding earth—which indeed its ancestral habit has made it cease wanting—it sinks its roots into the bark of the tree and hunts there for the pipes that carry the sap. Now the sap in the bark is the very richest in the tree, far richer than that in the wood, and the mistletoe gets from its host the choicest of food. With a strange foresight it does not throw its leaves away as do most parasites, but keeps them to use in winter when the tree is leafless.

Already Planned

There were few persons who knew the Locke family even in a casual way who had not discovered that Mrs. Locke was in the habit of nagging her husband and children. She loved them dearly, but at times nobody would have surmised it.

What did Mr. Locke say when he found himself safe after those hours of danger?" some one asked a friend who had been in company with Mr. Locke on an ocean steamer which met with an accident in mid Atlantic. "He never says the ordinary thing."

"No," said the friend with a dry smile. "He didn't that time. I said to him, 'James, we ought to make something more of our lives from having them spared to us in this way,' for I had felt pretty solemn, I can tell you. I've no doubt James did too, but what he said was 'William, a good share of the rest of my life will be spent in explaining to Theodora how I happened to choose that steamer when there were dozens of others that reached home without any accident.'"—Youth's Companion.

The Generous Arab.

"One day when in our wanderings we happened to camp near some rolling country the sheik and I rode off in search of gazelles," says a traveler in Arabia. "We found a large herd, and being mounted on good horses we managed to ride them down, throwing ourselves off our horses for the shot, then galloping on again. We killed six gazelles in about an hour and rode back to camp with enough meat for a big feast. It is the custom that whoever kills game should provide a feast for all his friends. On the occasion of these feasts I noticed that there was always a crowd of hangers on waiting at the end for a scrap of food, half starved looking boys and ragged men. These were orphans whose parents had been killed or men whose herds had been lifted by other Arabs and as a result they were destitute, for the law of the Bedouin is 'survival of the fittest' in its strictest sense. But the sheik supplied food liberally, and I noticed that he always looked after the poor and fed the hungry."

A Life Saving Order.

Many years ago the American warship Delaware came near foundering off the coast of Sardinia while luffing through a heavy squall during a morning watch. The unauthorized letting go of the fore sheet alone saved the ship from going down with 1,100 souls on board. The first lieutenant, afterward Commodore Thomas W. Wyman, with difficulty climbing, succeeded in reaching the quarterdeck, where snatching the trumpet from the officer in charge his first order given in a voice heard distinctly fore and aft was "Keep clear of the paint work!" This command to hundreds of human beings packed in the lee scuppers like sardines in a box instantly restored them to order and prevented a panic, they naturally feeling that if at such a time with a line of battle ship on her beam ends clean paint work was of paramount importance their condition could not be a serious one.

Poison In War.

When the French beat the Formosans along the coast in 1881 the latter retired to the interior. When the French pursued them they found a queer line of defense beyond which they could make no progress and in storming which many died. The Formosans had poisoned the springs, water courses, etc., as they retreated, and the campaigns of the French against them never got further than the poison line. The poison was a native one as deadly as arsenic or strychnine.

Argus Eyed and Hydra Headed

The term Argus eyed means watchful. According to the Grecian fable, Argus had 100 eyes and Juno set him to watch all of whom she was jealous. When Argus was slain she transplanted his eyes into the tail of the peacock. Hydra headed is a term derived from the fable of Hercules and the hydra. The hydra had nine heads, and Hercules was sent to kill it. As soon as he struck off one of its heads two shot up in its place.

Rupture Quickly Cured

No Charge if You Don't Get Relief

Not a single cent comes out of your pocket if a trial of the Cluthe Truss which automatically gives Massage Treatment doesn't result in immense relief. We don't want a cent of your money unless this Truss does you a world of good.

The Cluthe Truss with its Automatic Massage Treatment is entirely unlike any other truss ever made.

There is no belt, no leg straps, no springs, no harness of any kind, what ever. Nothing at all uncomfortable.

Your Rupture Can't Come Out.

You'll feel a whole lot stronger the minute you put this Truss on. Your rupture will never again come out.

No matter how you lift and strain the Cluthe Truss will hold your rupture securely and comfortably in place. You'll never suffer another moment's discomfort. Think of that—you who now have to put your rupture back perhaps many times a day—you who now wear trusses that cause you constant torture.

Automatic Massage Treatment

The Cluthe Truss automatically gives a wonderfully beneficial massage treatment.

It has Automatic Holding Pads. They are self regulating—self adjusting to every movement you make. That is why it is utterly impossible to force these pads out of position. There is always proper support for your rupture.

And these Automatic Holding Pads automatically massage the weakened muscles at the rupture opening until they are strong and sound.

This massaging does for these muscles what exercise does for the arms or legs. That is how the Cluthe Truss cures even after everything else has failed to do any good whatever.

Cures In Short Time

When you wear a Cluthe Truss you can do any work that you could do if you weren't ruptured.

And unless yours is a terribly bad case the Cluthe Truss with its Automatic Massage Treatment will soon cure you completely.

The Cluthe Truss has cured some of the worst cases in history.

Cured men and women 50, 60 and 70 years old—people who had been ruptured 20 to 50 years—people who had worn dozens of other trusses in vain.

Our Expense if It Fails.

Please do not doubt these statements. See the proof in our free book. It is your duty to send for it.

Remember that you can try the Cluthe Truss at our risk. Let it prove all we say. If it fails to hold your rupture every minute of the day it won't cost you a penny.

Free Book Tells

We have written a book—which sums up all that we have learned about Rupture in forty years of day after day experience—in the successful treatment of over 250,000 cases.

This book explains why elastic spring and leg strap trusses or appliances can never cure. It explains about operations. It exposes the fraud behind some of the advertised methods. It puts you on guard against throwing money away.

And it tells all about the Cluthe Truss with Automatic Massage Treatment.

It tells the experience of many former sufferers. And we give you (with their permission) the names and addresses of over 3,500 people who have received instant relief at our hands—most of them entirely cured—some of them you probably know.

Your name on a postal—or on the coupon below—brings you this helpful book. Send today—don't put it off—when you read this book you will know how you can get immediate relief without risking any more money.

When writing, please give our Box number as below.
